The Bachelor of Arts program in Anthropology provides a broad base of information about human culture and what makes humans unique. Culture is the totality of what we learn, and it is the basis for how we define the world. Anthropologists study all kinds of individual cultures, both living and dead, simple and complex, to gain an understanding of culture as a human phenomenon. The very nature of anthropology is multicultural and historical. Within anthropology, there are specializations in General Anthropology, Cultural Anthropology, and Archaeology. This is a hands-on program and students regularly participate in faculty-directed research projects in the Pensacola area. Senior internships and cooperative programs with private firms and government agencies also provide on-the-job training and lead to employment. The Anthropology program is a springboard to a wide range of jobs in the private or government sectors, as well as post-graduate academic programs.

The Archaeology Specialization in the Anthropology major prepares students for graduate study in anthropology-archaeology, and employment in cultural resource management in both the private sector and government agencies. The program includes both terrestrial and shipwreck archaeology. There are several archaeologists in the department and Archaeology Institute who teach and do research with students. There are almost continuous faculty-directed archaeology research and contracts in which students get hands-on experiences in the Pensacola area and surrounding region. Senior internships with regional and national employers and research institutes provide valuable and practical on-the-job training.

PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

In addition to general University requirements and General Studies requirements, students seeking the B.A. in Anthropology must meet the requirements listed below:

A grade of "C" or better is required in all Anthropology and major-related courses.

Course descriptions are listed alphabetically by prefix in the back of this Catalog.
