International Studies is an interdisciplinary major designed to foster understanding and analysis of world issues. Major coursework provides a broad introduction to the world emphasizing culture, history, politics, geography and economics. Critical thinking and problem-solving skills are developed through the curriculum of study, as contextual knowledge is gained and contemporary problems examined. There are five International Studies tracks or concentrations: Generalist, Security and Diplomacy, International Business and Economics, Cultural Affairs, and Area Studies. In the Generalist track, students take a broad spectrum of courses relating to their major. In the Security and Diplomacy track, students focus on political science, international relations, studies of conflict and war, diplomatic relations, international law and organizations, military issues, democratization, and politics in specific countries. In the International Business and Economics concentration, students focus on international trade, development, business and economics. In the Cultural Affairs track, students emphasize history, anthropology, geography, and humanities of countries outside of the United States. In the Area Studies concentration, students pay particular attention to one region of the world, such as Europe, Latin America, or Asia. The Area Studies concentration requires two semesters of foreign language.
