Psychology is the study of human and animal behavior. An understanding of psychological processes entails understanding the multiple influences created by the biological characteristics of the organism, the effects of learning and experience, social and cultural dynamics, and developmental change. As a scientific discipline, the study of psychology requires competence in research methodology and critical thinking. Psychology is also an applied discipline, with applications in behavioral and physical health, business, education, and law, among others. Students completing a major in psychology will be prepared to pursue a wide range of careers at the bachelor's level or to pursue advanced training in psychology or other professional schools (such as medicine and law). Students will attain a high-quality liberal arts degree focused on knowledge in the discipline of Psychology, integrity in the application of that knowledge, effective project management, and excellent critical thinking and communication skills.

Contact the department for information concerning the certificate.

PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

In addition to general University requirements, students seeking the B.A. in Psychology must meet the requirements listed below.

Students must earn a "C" or higher in all upper division courses required for the psychology major.

Sport and Exercise Psychology

A minor in Sport and Exercise Psychology is offered by the Psychology Department in affiliation with the Department of Health, Leisure and Exercise Science. The minor is primarily designed for those students interested in the psychological aspects of sport and other exercise activities. Completing coursework from sport science and psychology emphasizes the integrated nature of psychomotor performance and its effects on psychological, social, and physical functioning. This minor provides an opportunity for coursework centered on health and exercise (e.g., health, nutrition and physical fitness) and psychology (e.g., sport & exercise psychology, sociology of sport) with the option of taking relevant electives from both fields. This minor is available to all students.
